The Problem

Officials are looking to get their name and contact information into the assignor community to get more game assignments. For many officials, knowing the assignors is the first step. Most officials know a number of their local assignors. However, in some cases, the assignor doesn't know them. In other cases, the assignor doesn't regularly use the officials. In addition, officials may not be known to summer league assignors, tournament directors or church organizations looking to fulfill officiating assignments. It is difficult to continue to update availability when working with more than one assignor, or even keep a single assignor up to date with the latest additions or availability changes in the officials' schedule.

The Solution

GotRef™ has been created to address the logistical problems associated with game to official assignments for all sports. Our company recognizes that tracking schedules of officials should be up to the minute. We also recognize that every official wants only one schedule to track all of their assignments as well as personal commitments. Officials can now maintain a single, consolidated schedule for all game assignments. This creates less of a burden on updating assignors. In fact, as the officials' schedule changes and it is updated within our system, the assignor is immediately able to deal with the scheduling change and know that the official is unavailable at a given point in time. With our notification engine, everyone that is involved in the assignment will be notified instantly via e-mail or the next time they log into GotRef™ and the officials' schedule will be automatically blocked from additional assignments. Officials can easily return games to assignors for reassignment if the need arises. The assignor will be notified of returned games via our notification engine instantly through e-mail and upon logging into the system. This streamlines the process of accepting, rejecting or returning assignments.

GotRef™ has two large benefits for officials to manage their season. First, an official has only a single schedule to maintain and update. This is a very beneficial tool to officials. The second major benefit to officials is exposure to anyone looking for an official within the system. This allows them maximum game assignments, without having to know everyone in the area that is looking for an official. GotRef™ has many other features that streamline the process of notification, assignment and even turnbacks that makes GotRef™ a logical choice within the officials' community.

GotRef™ should be considered by officials as the next generation of their game assignment information filing cabinet. Unlike most filing cabinets, our system will provide assignors with up to the minute availability, allowing you to maximize your assignment potential.
